

ABSTRACT

A method for obtaining web-based advertising research data over a network is disclosed. User reaction data of at least one user to at least one advertisement displayed on a web site is collected. Questions are then posed to said at least one 5 user based on said gathered user reaction data.